The 2012 Bourgogne Chardonnay is just a little muffled on the nose, more because of the sulfur that had been added two weeks earlier than the winemaking. The palate is nicely balanced, soft and creamy in texture but needing just a little more weight toward the finish. Fine.

The 2012 Bourgogne Pinot Noir, which comes from a single vineyard in Gevrey-Chambertin and has just 5% stems, has a soft strawberry and Morello cherry-scented bouquet. The palate is nicely balanced, supple and slightly chewy in the mouth with a crisp taut finish. This is very pure and easy drinking.
